ANNOUNCE RULES TO GOVERN FREE TEXTBOOK USAGE

Free Books to be on Hand
For Opening of City
Schools Here

RULES ANNOUNCED

Parents and Students Held in Responsibility For Textbooks

The use of free textbooks in city schools of Ada, which has been a baffling problem to school officials for some time, has been clarified by the announcement of State Superintendent M. A. Nash of a list of rules to be adopted in the use of free texts in public schools.

Superintendent J. E. Hickman of city schools has been actively engaged in clearing up the matters in connection with the adoption of free text books in city schools and has been securing a bit of personal information concerning the legislation governing the use of free books.

Superintendent Hickman stated that he had been assured by Nash that textbooks would be on hand here by September 1 and would be ready for the opening of city schools on September 5.

Following is the set of rules governing the use of free textbooks applicable to independent school districts:

List of Rules.

1. Books will be issued to all grade pupils who will receipt therefor.

2. Pupils may take books home with them and act in every way as if they were personal property. So long as these books are in the hands of the children, they will be held responsible for their care and safekeeping. A book lost, destroyed, damaged or stolen will be charged to the child to whom the book was issued and he will have to pay for the book before he will be issued another book of any kind.

3. A pupil withdrawing from school, or moving from one district to another, will be issued a clearance receipt upon accounting for all books issued to him. He will be required to present this receipt before being issued books in another district or again in his home district.

4. Teachers will issue books under direction of the school board or custodian to pupils under their supervision and take their receipts or the receipt of their parents therefor. The teacher will keep a permanent record of the names of all the children to whom books have been issued and the serial number of books issued each child. To assist in keeping check on these books, the teacher may permit the pupil to write his name in each book with pencil only.

5. The teacher should have a monthly check up or inventory of all books in his room, at which time all books will be placed on the top of the desk and a roll will be called by name, text, and serial number.

6. When a pupil reports a book gone, the teacher should make note of the fact and inform the pupil or his parents that before another book can be issued, the lost book must be paid for at the regular state contract price.

7. The teacher will not be held personally responsible for the safekeeping of any book in her room nor will she be expected to use any extreme or unpleasant measure in trying to collect for lost books. However, the teacher will be expected to use ordinary diligence and care in the matter and take a personal interest in such as is ordinarily required by professional ethics.

8. Parents will be expected to sign for books except where children are large enough to do this for themselves. They are held responsible for all books issued to their children and shall be prompt in paying for any book which has been lost while in the possession of their children. Until this is done, no new books will be issued to the pupil in default.

9. Parents may purchase books for their children and those children still will be entitled to a set of free text books. All books, issued are the property of the state and parents should teach their children to respect them as such.

10. Books shall be received by the principal from the custodian, a receipt given therefor, and distributed to the pupils by the teachers, the teacher taking a receipt from the pupil for each book issued.

Hickman's Statement

Following is the statement of Superintendent J. E. Hickman of City schools:

These rules clarify the situation and set us clear on some phases of the free text law about which there has been more or less confusion. In the first place, books will be issued to all children in all grades through the eighth. Not a part of the books, but all the books will be issued to all the children in all the grades. In the

Cards Tender Contracts for Ada Players

Contracts have been tendered to Miner Formby, pitcher and Ralph and Lloyd Waner, infielder and outfielder of the Ada club, by the St. Louis Cardinals, it became known here today following the visit of Blake Harper, scout, here for yesterday's game.

The contracts tendered for the three players are not considered entirely satisfactory for their benefit in organized baseball and have not been intently considered by A. O. Green, manager of the local club, who negotiates with league contract offers.

Harper was highly pleased with the performances of the three Ada stars and straightway made offers for them but his offers were without sufficient cash consideration in case of failure to stick with the Cardinals.

Harper came to Ada for the Sunday game after Branch Rickey, failed to arrive from Muskogee, Rickey had intended to come to Ada but could not on account of delayed train schedule.

SIX CANDIDATES IN SENATE RACE

Race for Abandoned Job of Robert L. Owens Sought
By Many

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 25.—Six candidates will be in the field within a few weeks seeking the approval of Oklahoma voters of their candidacy for the United States senate to succeed Senator Robert L. Owen.

It is expected the contest will develop one of the most spirited political fights in Oklahoma's history, as the cross currents of issues and indifference are many and varied.

Campbell Russell, a Democrat, former chairman of the corporation commission, running as an independent and O. E. Enfield, socialist, already have taken the field and it is expected the others; J. C. Walton, former governor; W. B. Pine, Republican; George Wilson, farmer-laborer and Jack Benson, independent, soon will follow.

According to tentative plans, Walton will open his campaign about the middle of September, probably making his initial speech in the Panhandle section of the state. It is the intention of Walton managers to have him make a 38-day swing through the state, speaking in two towns each day, closing his drive for the senate to go with a speech at Oklahoma City a day or two before the general election. The plans are subject to change and will not be announced before the first week of September, according to Ben Lafayette, Walton manager.

Walton will continue his attack on the Ku Klux Klan, following the line of argument he presented during the primary. Lafayette said.

W. B. Pine will tour the state, probably visiting each county. A. C. Alexander, republican state committee chairman, said, devoting most of his addresses to a discussion of national and legislative issues. National republican figures will be brought to Oklahoma to speak in the interest of Pine's candidacy, Alexander said.

Notable among these is Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas.

Pine, who was said to have had the klan endorsement in the primary, but who denied membership in the hooded order, the day after the primary election, will follow the lead of Coolidge and Dawes in stressing the need of "economy and sanity" in government, Alexander declared.

Russell, although he admits his membership in the klan, declared in his first statement to voters that he is NOT a "klan candidate" and that many persons who have no interests in the klan and anti-klan fight can find in him a candidate who will devote his time "to representing the people."

Wilson, former reconstruction league leader, and for a time, president of the Oklahoma A. and M. college has aligned himself with the La Follette movement and will seek election by those who are dissatisfied with the major political parties.

Wilson was manager of Walton's campaign for the governorship two years ago and later became the chief figure in the fight that surrounded his appointment to the presidency of the Oklahoma A. and M. college. He broke with the governor, following his removal from that position.

Enfield and Benson are little known to the majority of voters, although the latter has been prominent in Oklahoma City politics for several years.

Benson, a few weeks ago, in a statement to the public offered to hand his resignation to Governor Trapp if he were elected and let the democratic state committee select a senator that would suit the people. He declared in opening his statement that he was not fitted for the senatorship and added that if other candidates were as candid as he, they would likewise profess unfitness for the place.

PACKING COMPANY IN RECEIVERSHIP AFTER COMPLAINT

One of World's Largest Packing Houses Goes Into Receiver Hands

CLAIMS INDEBTEDNESS

Company Interests Will Contest
Suit; Plan Reorganization

(By the Associated Press)

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 25.—Wilson & Company, incorporated, one of the largest packing establishments in the world, has been placed in the hands of a receiver, on complaint of Maurice I. Klien, vice chancellor. J. H. Backes, temporarily named state banking commissioner, Edward Mason, receiver for the company.

In a lengthy complaint Klien said the big packing concern was in debt $30,000,000 and has a debt outstanding of $47,177,000.

Klien claims he is the holder of 25 shares of the Wilson & Company stock with a par value of $2,500 and contends that at least two recent instances where interest fell due on the company's outstanding bonds they had no cash on hand to pay interest.

Wilson & Company recently acquired a rendering plant on the outskirts of Trenton and has large packing houses throughout the world. Its capital stock is listed on the New York state exchange and the Chicago board of trade.

Backes today ordered them to show by September 2, why the receivership should not be made permanent and the plant declared insolvent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Wilson & Company, incorporated, Chicago packers, will contest the receivership suit in Trenton, N. J., recently begun, Thomas Wilson, president of the company, announced in a telegram to his office today. He is in New York.

Frank O. Wetmore, chairman of the banking committee, has been asked to work out a plan for reorganization of the company's finances it is understood. Some time ago it is said approximately 35 percent of the creditors were agreeable to a reorganization and plans were going forward in an effort to bring the creditors into a refinancing plan.

While the company had been doing a large business its expenses had been too heavy and a refinancing plan was attempted.

FEDERAL COURT CINCHED FOR ADA

Civic Organizations Anxious To Foster Movement for Federal Building

Ada has a Federal Court. For the time being the court must be held in the Memorial Hall. Some of the citizens interested in the growth and development of the city believe that some steps should be taken to get an option on a site for a federal building. They say they know Congressman Tom D. McKeown will get a federal building just as soon as that is possible and they believe if an option on a suitable site before the committee in the congress that results would come much quicker.

Ada's skyline is to undergo rapid changes in the future. The new office building at the corner of Broadway and Twelfth will help matters. A federal building in two or three blocks of the crossing of Main and Broadway would add much to the attractiveness of the city as well as provide quarters for carrying on the business much more effectively.

The Chamber of Commerce and the other civic bodies are anxious to urge the matter along. It is entirely likely, members of the board of directors say, that steps will be taken at once to get ready for a fight for another public building for Ada.

DAVIS TO MAKE TWO SPEECHES AT COLUMBUS

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, will make two speeches at Columbus, Ohio, the first to be before Democratic state conference and the second at the state fair grounds.

He had made no preparation for his address in advance, but it is understood that in his speech he will refer to President Coolidge's acceptance speech made at Seagirt, N. J.

ADA GOLFERS WIN OVER HOLDENVILLE

Local Pasture Pool Artists
Turn Lot Into Rampage
And Win Match

Ada golfers did to Holdenville yesterday what "Ma" Ferguson, newly nominated governess of Texas, did to her opponent in Saturday's election. When the last ball of the match had twisted its hazardous way into the 9th hole on the last round of the play, Ada had won 17 out of a possible 20 match points; had tied with the enemy on 8 points and had left only 5 for the invaders to chalk up in their column. In view of the fact that Holdenville has won both of the matches previously played this year by decisive scores, yesterday's victory for the local club was well earned, but equally as well deserved for they outplayed the visitors both in stroke competition and in match play.

Paul E. Alderson, of the local club led the field in medal play by turning in a 77 for the 18 holes, 4 strokes under his nearest competitor Buckley of Holdenville, who shot an 81 and who was also Alderson's opponent in match play. This match drew what little gallery dared to brave the excessive heat to witness the play.

Ada players won 11 of their points on the individual 9-hole matches and tied 5 leaving Holdenville 4; they took 6 of the 18-hole match points, tied for 3 and allowed the visitors 1.

The medal scores for the 18 holes given below will show the teams compared at stroke competition:
Ada—Holdenville—
Alderson, 77 Buckley, 81
Givins, 89 Jones, 96
Mallory, 85 Dulan, 84
Matthews, 96 Orr, 97
Biles, 85 Yoakum, 97
Coffman, 98 Benson, 96
Levertt, 87 Atkins, 86
Kitchell, 91 Chaistine, 96
Skirvin, 90 Matkins, 96

Three Drunks in Court.

Vintage of strong drink filled the full responsibility for today's action in police court, according to the report of Mayor Somer Jones. Three drunks were splitting honors for the business transaction in court this morning but all paid off and called it a day.

Divorce Mill Busy

August threatens to cop all records in the filing of divorce petitions, records indicate. At the present time 14 parties have sought freedom from matrimonial ties via the divorce route. This is considered a good average for the lawyers of the community.

MERCURY STAGGERS TO HIGHEST PEAK

City Thermometers Register
Mercury Reading of 106
Degrees Sunday

All standards of comfort were set aside yesterday and the path left open to the ravages of Old Sol, who hot footed into town at the rate of 106 miles per hour or the greatest heat pace of the 1924 summer season.

What little breeze stirring about on the streets of the city came in such heated blasts that Sunday comfort seekers were forced to scramble within the radius of an electric fan to obtain any degree of comfort.

The temperature reached its highest pitch at 2:30 Sunday afternoon and began a steady decline later in the evening proceeding refreshing rain that cooled off the parched earth.

Despite the frenzied heat of the day, Ada made no reservations for the heat mania, several hundred people forgetting all about the temperature in a hair raising ball game at the park and still other sport enthusiasts romped around the Ada Golf and Country club course in a matched play with Holdenville.

The refreshing rains of early Sunday evening did little but bring comfort to the residents of Ada for the precipitation of only .15 had little benefit for crops in the county.

Monday weather report showed an acute decline in mercury registration, 100 degrees being the high mark of the day. This was lowered in another welcomed rain at 3:30.

Bank Near Dallas Robbed.

(By the Associated Press)

DALLAS, Aug. 25.—Two unmasked men held up a bank at Mesquite, a few miles from Dallas and escaped with $3,000. They overlooked several thousand dollars. One of the men entered the bank and forced the employees in the vault and other stayed in the car with the motor running.

Blacksmiths, sadlers and wheelwrights are just beginning to die out in Europe.

TWO NEGROES SOUGHT FOR ASSAULTING MAN

Two negroes, who are believed to be responsible for the assaulting and hijacking of Will Roberts, a white man, in Ada late Saturday night, are being sought by city and county officers.

A horde of negroes filed in and out of the county attorney's office this morning in response to summons for their appearance for the investigating of the assault and robbery.

According to information gleaned from the battered white man and a score of negroes who appeared in the county attorney's office, Roberts had been seen at a negro picnic on Sandy and returned to Ada late Saturday night accompanied by two negroes.

Roberts said that he let the negroes out of his car near the Choctaw Cotton Oil mill and got out of the car at the same time. Roberts was found some time later with several severe head wounds.

Injuries resulting from the assault necessitated the removal of his right eye.

Officers are certain that the two negroes who returned to town with Roberts will be captured. They are reported missing now.

EIGHT KIWANIS TO ATTEND MEET

Hickman Tells Club Members
Of Problems Facing City Schools

Eight Kiwanians will represent the Ada club at the district convention at Lawton next Monday and Tuesday when Kiwanis leaders from Oklahoma and Texas assemble in their annual convocation.

Despite the fact that the club had planned an enmasse invasion on the convention center, membership attendance was cut down considerably when a checkup was taken at today's noon meeting at the Episcopal Parish house, where Ladies of the Guild served dinner to 33 members and guests.

Secretary O. McBride was instructed to wire the convention that the Ada club would send at least eight delegates to the meeting. A committee has been appointed to inject spirit into the convention convocation and secure more delegates from the club personnel for convention attendance. The committee will also announce the time of leaving and the route to be taken. Ada delegates will go to the convention by motor.

Kiwanians were favored with a short talk by Superintendent J. E. Hickman of the city schools, who responded to his introduction and told members what they could do to assist the problems in the schools.

Superintendent Hickman outlined briefly the problems facing the schools of Ada, telling of the new difficulties in connection with the free textbook legislation. He stated that he had been assured that books would be on hand by September 1 and that all preliminary problems in this connection had been handled.

Hickman appealed for the loyal support of Kiwanians in the activities of the city schools. Hickman praised the college as the best in the state and one of the best in the United States and agreed that it deserved the loyal support of Ada people. He pointed out that the high school student needed and deserved the benefits of student activities, such as football, baseball and other athletic features and that these are difficult when citizens are listless in supporting them.

The superintendent explained another problem of the schools in the present shortage of funds on which the schools are operating. He pointed out that last year the schools received slightly over $100,000 on which to operate for the year, which was scarcely adequate and this year the schools receive $98,000 on which to operate on a larger basis with more students and a greater expansion. He declared that the sad part about the fund shortage was the cut in salaries of teachers, causing a continued shifting of the teacher personnel in the city schools. He reported that he had lost 15 teachers this year because they had secured better salaries in other towns. He declared that the fact that the city is an institutional town has proved a savior to the teacher problem.

Superintendent Hickman concluded by inviting Kiwanians to examine records of the school affairs, declaring that they are open for inspection at all times.

Doctor Rogers of Connerville emphasized the need of a good road south from Ada in order that Ada farmers might find access to the fishing facilities on Blue river. Rogers appealed for more interest from Ada people on the good roads proposition.

A. W. Parker was presented with a dainty vanity case, a present of Harry Wilensick of the Globe, as the attendance prize.

ITALIAN AIRMAN PICKED UP NEAR LANDING PLACE

Aviator Suffers Fatigue From Hours of Drifting on Water

ENGINE IS DAMAGED

Declares He Was Unable to Lift Plane From Dense Fog

(By the Associated Press)

On Board the U. S. S. cruiser Richmond, east of Cape Farewell, Greenland, Aug. 25.—The Richmond rescued Lieut. Locatelli, missing Italian aviator at 11:35 o'clock last night. He was picked up 125 miles east of Cape Farewell. The Italian flier and his companion were uninjured although worn out by fatigue.

Motor trouble had forced Locatelli to come down on the water during the flight last Thursday from Reykjavik, Iceland.

He was unable to bring his plane into the air again and drifted 100 miles. Locatelli requested that his plane be destroyed and his wish was complied with.

The last report heard of the Italian aviator during his flight gave his position 40 minutes ahead of the Americans but when the latter reached Fredericksdal he was not there, and was thought for a time to have passed the goal. American officers and aviators with the aid of Danish officers and natives familiar with the tortuous coast along the southeast tip of Greenland have searched for him since it became known that he was lost. It was known that the searching party were greatly handicapped by a heavy fog and unfavorable weather.

Locatelli had been missing since he hopped off Thursday in company with Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Nelson. He was last seen several hours later flying along the coast from Iceland to Fredericksdal, Greenland, but failed to reach the latter with the Americans.

During the early stages of the long hop across the Atlantic Locatelli using a faster machine than the Americans, outdistanced them passing the cruiser Richmond 70 miles southeast of Reykjavik, five miles ahead of Lieuts. Smith and Nelson. When the Italian failed to arrive at Fredericksdal or to report from Cape Farewell on the southern tip of Greenland, Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder ordered the American warvessels on patrol near Greenland to search for him. It was this search which was rewarded last night.

Started From Italy.

Locatelli's unsuccessful attempt to accompany the Americans on the hazardous journey of 825 miles over the North Atlantic followed a successful solitary flight from Pisa, Italy, to Iceland via England and Scotland. The flight was made with the sanction of the Italian government and in its later stages, particularly from Kirkwall to Hoenfarnford, Iceland, with the aid of the facilities which previously had been used by the American fliers and which had been put at Locatelli's disposal by the United States authorities.

The Italian originally was to have been one of the pilots of the aerial expedition which Raoul Amundtzen, a Norwegian explorer, planned to make to the North Pole and which later was postponed indefinitely. Locatelli then decided to make the North Pole trip but postponed his effort until next year considering that he needed more experience in Arctic flying before attempting the feat of reaching the top of the world by airplane.

He set out from Pisa, July 25, intending to follow in the wake of the American round-the-world airmen. Later, however, he realized that through their enforced delay made it possible for him to catch up and this he did, reaching Iceland in time to take off with them on the hop to the North American continent. This journey he announced before his departure from Italy, was to be in the nature of a trial flight as a preparation for his North Pole attempt which he declared he would make next year.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THOU SAITH THE LORD that cheated thee, O Jacob, and he that informed thee, O Israel. Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thy art mine.—Isaiah 43:1.

GETTING DOWN TO ISSUES.

Coolidge will doubtless O. K. Dawes' Augusta speech and with all candidates for the presidency declaring themselves against the Ku Klux Klan this will not be an issue in the campaign and all candidates can devote their attention to the real issues before the American people. La Follette had started out to make the Klan an issue but the action of the other candidates in agreeing with him will deprive him of his most effective weapons for with all in accord there can be no fighting about it anywhere along the line. It is a fortunate thing for the country that all are on one side since there are some real issues that need to be disposed of.

Davis and Bryan will apparently devote much of their attention to the issues of honesty in governmental affairs and the foreign policy of the United States should be clearly defined. The world war made such a radical change in the relations of nation to nation that this country cannot hold aloof as in times past and the people should place their stamp of approval on a definite policy and then let the United States follow it.

With foreign nations owing this country billions of dollars which must be collected or else taken from the citizens of the United States through taxation, we can no longer say we have no interest in foreign affairs. Our trade relations are too closely linked together for America not to have a vital interest in European affairs.

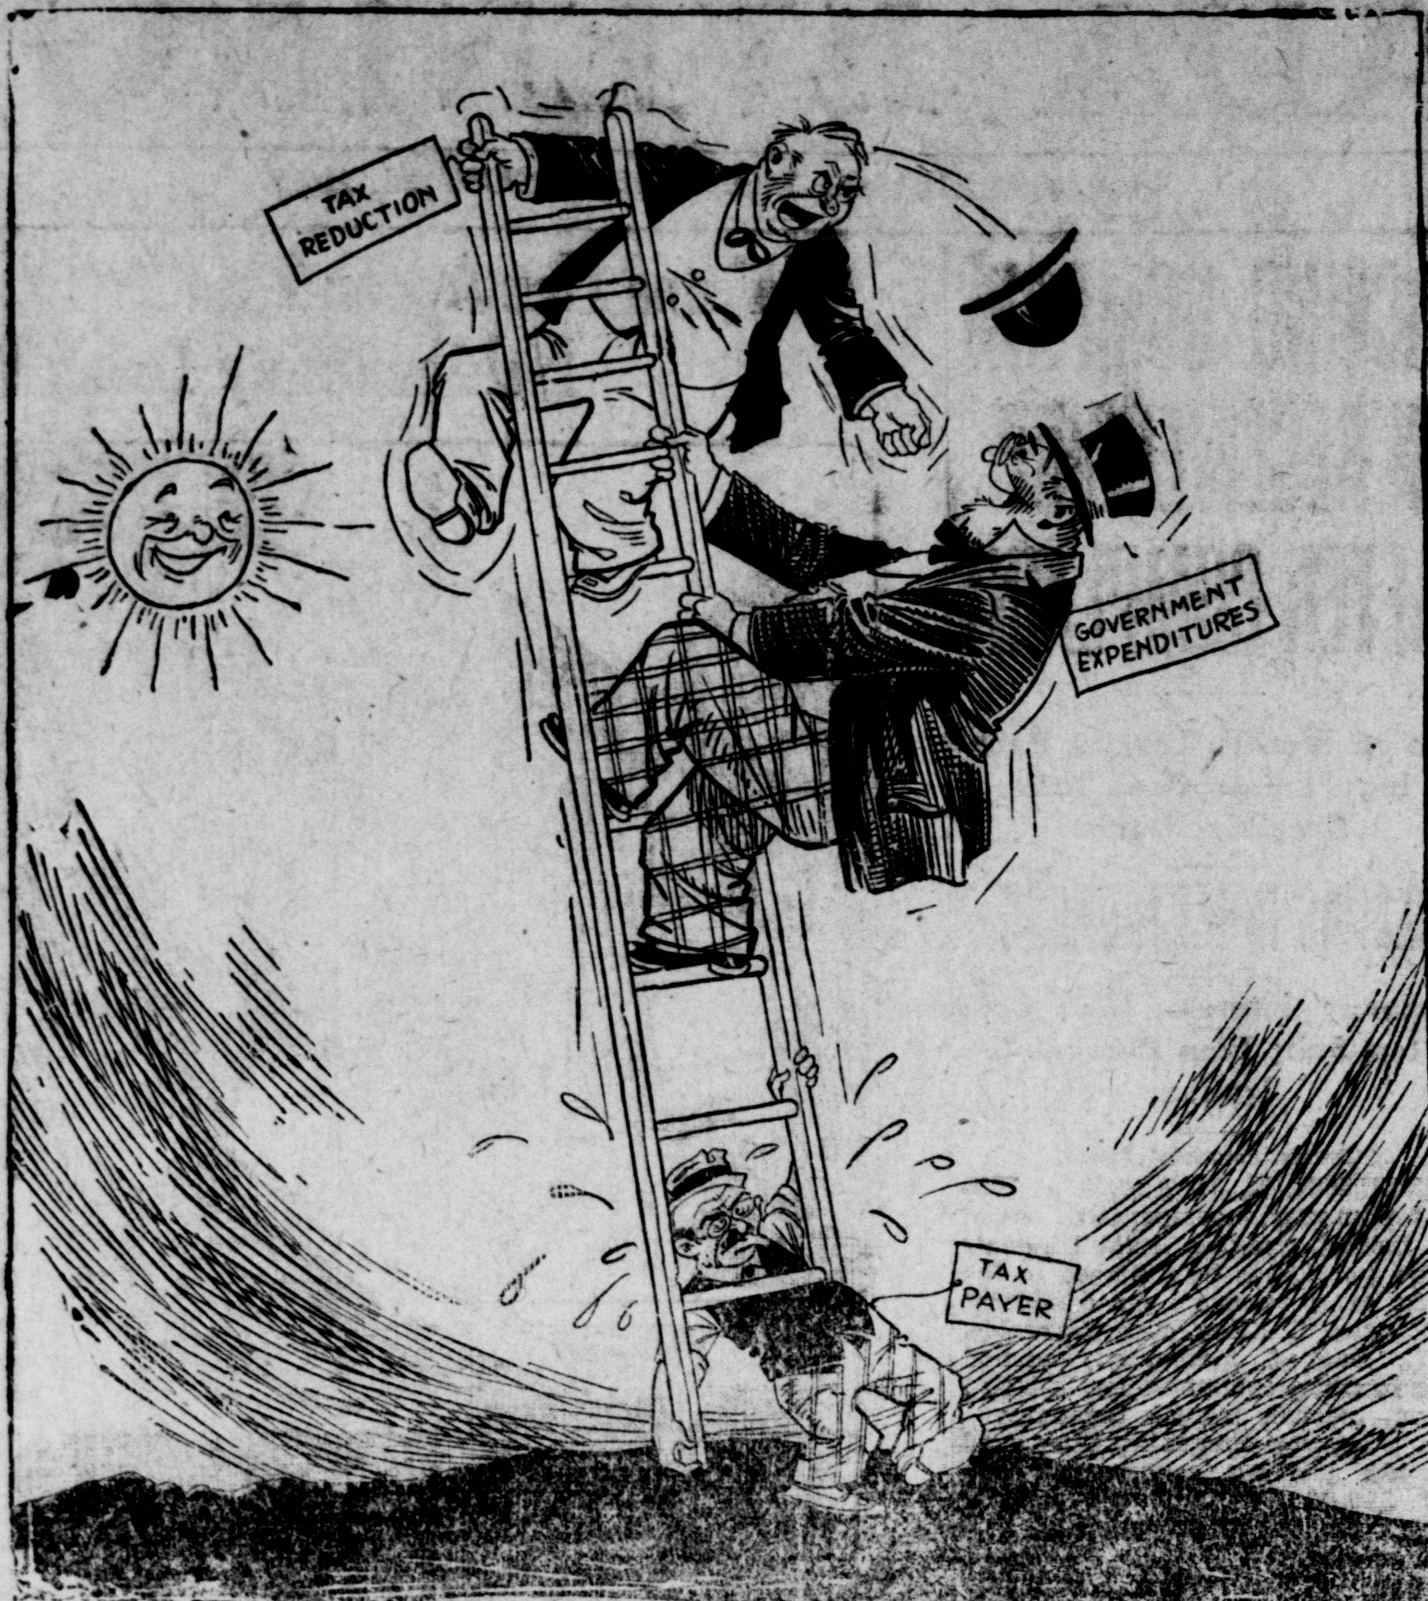

What the world must have is peace and it is the mission of the United States to take the lead in this matter. There are other matters which must be settled and now the field is clear for the nominees to inform the people on them.

The visit of Mars to the earth is still a lively topic of discussion but it will remain for the astronomers to tell us if anything of note has been discovered. In these times astronomers rely more upon photography than on their own vision in making observations and it will take some little time to develop their thousands of negatives and give them sufficient study to know if anything new has been discovered. However, it is doubtful if the question of life on the planet will be settled at this time. Some have held that the so-called canals on the surface of the planet are immense irrigation ditches with growing vegetation along their banks while others take no stock in such theories. Some believe that most of the water has dried up and that the inhabitants have had to construct the canals to draw water from the melting snow around the poles in order to sustain their lives. No doubt in time these questions will be cleared up but it may not be at this time. One interesting feature of the planet is its two moons. They are very small, probably not more than 15 or 20 miles in diameter, but are so close to Mars that their time of revolution is very short. One makes a revolution in about eight hours and the other in about twelve. As the nearer one travels faster than Mars revolves it appears to rise in the west, although, like our moon, it is in reality traveling eastward. Since the planet itself turns on its axis from west to east the moon apparently makes two revolutions in course of a day and night. Owing to the slower rate of the other moon it rises in the east and to a man on Mars would appear to make one revolution in course of a day and night. The two appear to meet and pass each other in the sky.

Newspaper writers continue to speculate on the possibility of the next presidential election being thrown into the house and possibly into the senate. In case La Follette carry a sufficient number of electoral votes to prevent either Coolidge or Davis from getting a majority of the electoral votes some interesting things may occur. In order to beat La Follette a sufficient number of electors of one or the other big parties might possibly swing their votes to the other side to make up the needed majority. Should the election go to the house the balance of power is held by the La Follette insurgents and the big parties would either have to join forces or else one or the other get the La Follette states. Even then it is doubtful how it would go since each state gets just one vote and the two parties are almost evenly balanced. In case of the vice president the senate is limited to the two high candidates and a majority vote of the senators is all that is necessary. Here again the La Follette force holds the balance of power and it would depend on La Follette's word whether Bryan or Davis should be elected. If the house failed to settle the question the senate's choice for vice president would take the oath as the next president of the United States. However, this is all rather far fetched. The chances are that either Coolidge or Davis will win in the electoral college and that will end the matter.

When every citizen realizes that government is not some intangible force with the power to perform miracles and that he himself is party of the government, the country will take a long step forward.

"YOU'VE GOT TO GO DOWN FIRST!"

Diggers in Norfolk Find

Bones of Soldiers of '76

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 25.—The skeletons of three soldiers of General Washington's Revolutionary army, buried nearly a century and a half ago near his camp site which now is a part of Berkeley, a Norfolk suburb, were unearthed several days ago in the yard of a citizen of that place. The bones were exhumed by laborers in digging for a sewer line. Buttons of copper or bronze and other time-worn objects indicated two of the men had been officers and the bones of one showed he must have been well over six feet in height.

While today there is nothing to indicate the place, now part of a residential section, was once a military burying ground, the skeletons found the other day make a total of six dug up in the same place within the past two years. A citizen of the suburb, J. H. Jones, who is 90 years old, recalls that in his boyhood days his father had pointed out the place as an old camp cemetery used by the forces of Washington. Soldiers buried there, according to the story, fell in the battles of Great Bridge and Money Point.

A monument long has marked the site of the battle of Great Bridge, and Money Point derives its name from an incident that occurred there during the Revolutionary War. It is related that money had been provided for the payment of the troops but before it could be distributed the British made a sudden attack and, fearing its capture, the Americans placed the money in a cannon and dropped it overboard. After the battle, which continued for several days with great fury, efforts to locate the cannon proved futile and the money to this day is supposed to be lying buried in the mud in the Elizabeth River.

During his campaign in this section, then one of the principal ports of entry for the colonies, Washington selected a site almost entirely surrounded by water, thus assuring him against attack except by water. So much impressed was he with the strategic value of his position, according to the story handed down for generations here, that Washington selected his camp as the site for a national capital, even going so far as to select a name for it.

IRISH PROHIBITIONISTS TOLD OF DRINK RAVAGES

(By the Associated Press)
DUBLIN.—Ten thousand persons from all parts of Ireland participated in the recent celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Pioneer Total Abstinence Association. A dozen bands and 500 clergymen marched in the procession, which took 45 minutes to pass a given point.

A monster mass meeting was presided over by the Rev. J. Flynn, S.J., and addressed by the Rev. P. J. Gannon, S.J., who deplored the general return of drunkenness in Ireland within the last six years and urged the support of a bill introduced in the Dial to check abuses of liquor. He said the bill is encountering the opposition of the "vast vested interests which depend for their profits on our most notorious national weakness." He urged the 250,000 members of the organization, most of whom are voters, to support the effort to bring the membership up to 1,000,000 voters and said 40 new centers of the total abstinence organization have been added since Christmas.

The Most Reverend Dr. Gaughan, Bishop of Meath, also addressed the meeting. He rejoiced in the fact that Ireland's political clouds are fast disappearing. "Irishmen are today rulers in their own country," he declared, "but of what permanent advantage is that if the demon of drink continues its ravages?"

A resolution was passed demanding the enactment of temperance reform measures by the Dail and the meeting concluded with the Papal blessing.

HAY FEVER

Complete Relief Guaranteed in 24 Hours
With Specialist's New Prescription

At last Hay Fever has yielded to modern medical science. A remarkable new prescription by a Cleveland specialist is guaranteed to banish every single symptom within 24 hours!

This new treatment, perfected by the physicians of the Clinical Laboratories, Cleveland, Ohio, is known as Dr. Platt's Rinex Prescription, and works on an entirely new principle. Science now proves that Hay Fever is due, not to mere surface irritation, but to an actual infection of the entire system caused by the absorption of raw protein from pollens floating in the air. Other treatments do not attempt to get at this internal cause. But Rinex prescription, taken in convenient capsule form, goes direct to this infection all through the system, and neutralizes it completely—without narcotics or harmful drugs or any bad after-effects. The result in 95 per cent of all cases is complete relief in 24 hours.

No matter how long you have had Hay Fever, no matter where you live, or how many other treatments you have tried in vain—Dr. Platt's Rinex is positively guaranteed to bring you complete relief in 24 hours—costs you nothing. If you want to be satisfied that Rinex will help your case of Hay Fever, you can get a 24-hour treatment FREE from your druggist; or you can buy a full week's treatment for $1 on a positive money-back guarantee. Get it today and simply TRY it—take just 3 doses. Your money back instantly if you don't find heavenly relief in 24 hours. At all good druggists.

PARADISE FOR BEARS FOUND IN HIGH RANGE

ETNA MILLS, CAL., Aug. 25.—Reports crediting all sort of strange things to a "lost valley" in the Sierran mountains, on the northern boundary of California, led Dr. Paul Cadman, Dr. Warner Hoyt and Harvey Miller, of Berkeley, to explore the region. They found the valley, a beautiful little plain, almost impenetrable, but there was nothing more startling than the number and size of the bear tracks.

The three men went by motor as far into the mountains as they could then took horses into the wild and rugged Caribou and Sawtooth ranges. The hidden valley lies between the headwaters of the Trinity and Salmon rivers. Some distance before reaching it they had to leave their horses and make their way on foot. There was no trail into the valley, which is protected by sheer peaks at the head of Thompson's creek.

The explorers found a clear remnant of a glacial lake at the upper end of the chasm, with a lush green meadow at the lower end. There was a multitude of mud wallows some times called "bears' bathtubs." Aside from the profusion of bear tracks, there was little to distinguish the valley from others of similar design in the Sawtooths.

It is a country of glacial lakes and waterfalls of vast heights.

A Pitiful Performance.
(Oklahoman)

The vaunted courage and sincerity of General Dawes is nowhere present when he compares the cost of federal government in 1924 with the cost of federal government in 1921. He displays at once an amazing lack of intellectual honesty and lack of faith in the commonsense of the American people if he expects to get away with such comparison. If he really wanted to establish a high reputation for republican administrative economy he would have compared present government expenses with those of the latest pre-war year.

No one knows better than General Dawes that congress was a republican body in 1921. No one knows better than General Dawes that the republicans captured congress in 1918. No one knows better than General Dawes that this congress brazenly ignored a nation-wide demand for retrenchment and the curtailment of wartime expenditures. No one knows better than General Dawes that the republican congressional leaders cold-bloodedly accepted the policy of wait till after the presidential election and let the nation bear an intolerable burden in order to make republican political capital.

Measures enacted in the midst of war to finance and safe-guard the nation were permitted for reasons of political expediency to continue year after year. Needless departments, needless bureaus, hunks like leeches on the public treasury thru two years of peace that a showing of economy might be denied a democratic president. Indigent veterans were completely ignored and left in dire want because a republican congress was determined that no credit whatever might be claimed by the Wilson administration.

Now comes the "courageous and sincere champion of economy and good government and seeks to take credit for one of the most pusillanimous courses ever pursued by a political organization. He proceeds on the theory that Americans are imbeciles and nit-wits, without sufficient intelligence to recall the betrayal of America less than four years ago. If this is the courage and intellectual honesty of General Dawes, one example is enough for a generation.

Metamorphosis of a Cow-Town Into a City Beautiful

MILLION DOLLAR PALLISER HOTEL

Average Americans are lamentably ignorant concerning their next door neighbors' country, Canada. This is particularly true regarding the western part of the Dominion. Novels, drama and the movies have pictured it as a place where life is a series of dramatic or gruesome adventures in a wild land—very romantic, but not true to the real state of affairs.

Recently, the writer applied at a sub-postal station in New York City for a money order on Calgary, Alberta. The clerk at the window naively asked: "Is there a post office at that place?" It seems incredible that any American with a common school education should not know that Calgary is a fine, modern city of approximately 70,000 inhabitants. It is the distribution center for one of the richest agricultural areas in the world. The Alberta prairies are of a virgin fertility that only await cultivation to bring them to unbelievable productivity. Alberta's 1923 wheat crop amounted to more than 167,000,000 bushels, with more millions of bushels of other grains. A few acres needed the miracle of irrigation to awaken their sleeping possibilities. This irrigation was supplied by the Canadian Pacific Railway, whose great dams at Calgary and Banquo store the waters of the Bow River, whence it is distributed as necessary, by a vast system of canals and ditches to the grain fields in southern Alberta. The northern areas of the province receive sufficient rain and many sections, such as the Lloydminster, have never known a crop failure. Calgary is noted for its lovely homes with red tile roofs and beautiful gardens scattered over the hills embraced within the city's limits. The Bow and Elbow Rivers are attractive streams and on an island in the Bow is located a fine, free motor camp very popular with motor tourists. The city boasts of a large modern hotel, The Palliser—named after one of the pioneer seekers for a railway route through the Canadian Rockies—and it compares favorably with many metropolitan hotels in the United States. Calgaryans are very loyal to their city on the prairie, but a short distance from the foothills leading to the Canadian Rockies 80 miles away, yet plainly seen from Calgary. In 38 years Calgary has grown from a crude cow-town into a fine, clean city—a remarkable achievement. Its people now desire to make it a city beautiful and to that end are bringing in cardinals of trees. Every social and municipal organization is working at the task of beautification. One feature of the campaign is to interest citizens in the culture of dahlias, which flower is particularly adapted to Calgary's climate, where it attains perfection. The idea is popular and there is reason to prophecy that within a few years Calgary will be known as the Dahlia City. In order to stimulate the City Beautiful campaign, valuable prizes are offered for the finest gardens.

Word was received here today of the marriage on August 15 of Miss Dollie Fain and Mr. Arthur Johnson, the ceremony being performed at Okemah, the home of the groom.

The bride and groom are well known here, the bride having practically grown up here. She spent many years at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. J. Sarrett. She has been employed for the past three years as assistant teacher in Miss Wilcox's private school for Deaf at Sand Springs.

Mr. Johnson has attended East Central for the past two years and has been employed as teacher in the Henryetta schools for the coming term.

second place, books may be taken home and used as if the books were personal property, the child being responsible for the damage or loss of the book. In case of loss, the contract price will be paid to the custodian of the school district. Mrs. Mabel Brownell, secretary of the Board of Education, is the local custodian and will have charge of all books. Money collected will be accounted for and parents paying for loss or damage of books will be issued receipt for money paid the custodian. Again, in case of loss of books no other books can be issued until the lost property of the state has been accounted for.

Pupils withdrawing from school must turn in all free books to their teachers and get from the teacher a receipt for the return of such books. This done, on going to some other district new books will be issued. If books are not turned in upon withdrawal from school, the parents of the children are responsible to the state for the violation of this section of the school law.

Another thing: if parents want their children to have their own books, Mr. Shaw will handle all the books on the free list and purchases of books for children can be made from him and not from the state depository, as previously announced. If you don't want the free books, you can buy books, any on the free list, from Shaw's, the local depository. I presume other book dealers in the city will handle all these books, also.

I think it very doubtful that free books will be handled by the time school opens but there is not likely to be much delay. Until the free books can be had, children should get together all their old books and when school opens bring them to school for temporary use until the free books are available. No use to do this, however, until school opens.

If other contingencies arise in connection with the free books, patrons will be advised. A good portion of patience will be in order for all of us until we get this thing going right. It will go right, too, with your help and co-operation.

J. E. HICKMAN.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

We hear so much about the effect screen "sheiks" have on the acutely impressionable female heart. Perhaps the heart of the little clerk in the second row does slip a beat or two when the handsome hero impresses a kiss on the lips of the leading young lady; yet we have our idea such scenes have about the same effect on the hearts of the male members of the audience. Even the most blasé movie-goer could not look into the lovely eyes of the piquant Bebe Daniels and remain unmoved. Bebe is one of those persons who just can't help being adorable whether she appears in powder, patches, and wig as in "Monsieur Beaucaire," or cuts her capers in calico. Not a little of her popularity comes from her unaffected graciousness of manner.

One look into the aforesaid eyes and Bebe has captivated you. Bebe says her first appearance on the stage in Dallas, Texas, her birth place, when she was but ten weeks old. She was carried on in one of the old Shakespearean roles. Since her mother was an actress and her father manager of a theatrical company, Bebe just naturally chose the stage for a career.

After appearing on the boards at the tender age of ten weeks she was ready for a starring in "The Prince Chap" at the age of four. Then there were long years in a convent, getting educated. When she grew up, she sought honors in the movies and made pictures for Selig, Vitagraph, Harold Lloyd and Paramount. Some of the best known are "Why Change Your Wife?", "Nice People," "The Affair of Anatol," "Glimpses of the Moon," and most recently, "Monsieur Beaucaire" with Rudolph Valentino.

Two productions in which she co-starred with Richard Dix are scheduled for an early release, "Un-guaded Women" and "Sinners in Heaven." "Dangerous Money," in which she has the stellar role, will be released sometime later in the fall.

Bebe is a marvelous dancer and has taken many cups. Incidentally, she isn't married.

NO ARRESTS MADE IN SHOOTING NEAR TULSA

TULSA, Aug. 25.—No arrests had been made today following the feud-al gun battle Sunday on a country road near here. Three young men were killed and two of the dead boys' father wounded. The survivors of each family blamed the other for starting the fight. They admitted that the trouble started when girl members of the family quarreled over remarks made of a dress one wore.

W. J. McMillen, a farmer who lost a son, today said that when he met Charles E. Young a Tulsa workman he threatened to go get "the law" and have him arrested.

Young admitted that he did come to Tulsa where he was joined by two sons and three others and the six returned to the farm where his two sons were killed.

Removing Honey

STILLWATER—Honey should not be removed from a beehive until it is well ripened, says W. E. Jackson, assistant entomologist of Oklahoma A. and M. college, in a monograph entitled "Taking Honey From Bees". "Unripe honey is not suitable for eating and if it is stored there is danger of fermentation," Jackson declares.

"The production of comb honey is considered more economical and convenient for home use. By this it is not meant money in round sections, but in shallow frames where only a narrow starter is used. Sometimes it is desirable to remove a little sweet from the hive before the 'super' is completely filled. This can be accomplished by taking only a frame or two and, after the bees have been brushed from the comb, the frames may be taken into the kitchen and the honey removed.

"Practically all the cells should be capped. A sharp thin-bladed knife will serve to cut the comb from the sides of the frames and the honey and sliced into convenient blocks and placed in a dish. The knife should be drawn through the comb about one-fourth to one-half of an inch from the top bar, so as to leave a starter and the frame should be returned to the hive.

"A bee escape placed under the 'super' the day before its removal will serve to separate the bees from the 'super' and little or no trouble will be experienced in handling the bees.

"Some keepers prefer to brush the bees from the combs, but, as a rule, bees do not take kindly to a brushing. A bunch of grass will do for a brush. If honey is in an extracting frame, it should be uncapped and extracted. Foundations and old comb are not palatable.

SOFA—A chair for the study and explanation of the late ex-President Wilson's 14 points will be established this fall by the Free University of Sofia. Special attention will be given to the eleventh point which deals with the freedom of minorities and self-determination. These lectures are to be delivered at the special request of Dimitri Ikononoff who has given 500,000 leva to the Academy of Sciences to endow the chair.

"Two-in-One" Electric Engine Has Gear Shift

By simply shifting the gears, the "L-5," a powerful electric locomotive now in use on the Pennsylvania railroad, can be adapted for hauling an express or passenger train at a speed of 46 miles an hour, or, thrown into "low," where it develops a starting tractive effort of 100,000 pounds, and will haul a heavy freight train at a 23-mile-an-hour clip. This "two-in-one" electric engine; those commonly used being geared for only one type of service, either freight or passenger.

Testing Battery Polarity

A simple method of determining the polarity of a battery or cell, and at the same time roughly measuring its strength, is as follows: Dissolve 1 part of potassium iodide in 25 parts of water; place the solution in a shallow dish, soak several pieces of white blotting paper in it, then remove them and allow to dry. To use, moisten a piece of the prepared paper and touch it with wires leading from both poles of the battery, keeping them about 1/2 in. apart. A dark-brown spot will immediately be produced where the wire from the positive pole touches the blotter. A dead cell or battery will produce no spot. A little experience in judging the rapidity with which the spot is formed, and the shade of the color produced, will soon enable one to tell the condition of the battery fairly accurately, whether it is nearly dead, half charged, or fully charged. This method is applicable to both storage batteries and dry cells, although the wires must be further apart in the case of storage batteries.

Cleaning Crystals with Alcohol

The sensitiveness of a crystal determines to a great extent the receiving range of a set. Some crystals are much better than others in this respect, but even good ones are soon spoiled by improper care. Air causes the surface of the crystal to oxidize gradually, which of course decreases its efficiency. Dust particles in the air also lodge on the surface and adhere to it. The most trouble is, however, caused by handling the crystal, as the oil on the hands and fingers, which is imperceptible to the naked eye, insulates the surface of the crystal, and for this reason crystals should never be touched. An excellent method of cleaning crystals, which will in many cases restore the original sensitiveness, is to give them a bath in alcohol, using an old toothbrush to scrub them.

Salt Is Tougher than Steel

Strands of wire made from ordinary rock salt by a Russian chemist are reported to be tougher than those of steel. The inventor expects the process to aid in hardening and strengthening common metals, and believes that the treatment, if applied to other minerals may result in materials that would permit moving machinery to travel at much greater speeds. The scientist is said to put raw rock salt under high heat pressures, thus changing its form and increasing its flexibility and strength.

Towing Small Boats

When the stream is flowing so fast or the wind blowing so hard that it is difficult to make headway by rowing, the simple stunt shown in the drawing offers an easy way of towing the boat along the bank or shore. Tie the boat line to both bow and stern, as shown. By paying out on the bow part of the line and holding in the stern line, the boat can be kept nearly parallel with the bank, while if only a bow line is used the current or wind will cause the bow to dig into the bank, making towing difficult. If a narrow creek is encountered, its mouth can be crossed in the boat as follows: Let out the bow and haul in the stern; this will cause the boat to lie close against the mouth. Fasten the towline to an oar pushed slantingly (toward the water) into the bank. After walking across the creek in the boat, the oar is pulled out, which can readily be done on account of the slant at which it is placed.

At the oint meeting of the executive committees of the East Central Association and the East Central Alumni Association plans were laid for the annual Home Coming days October 20 and 21. The first day is to be featured by a foot ball game with Northwestern State Teachers college at 3 o'clock. A banquet at 5:30 and the first session of the Educational association in the evening. Advertisements will be sent out in the next few days and all alumni members are to stage a demonstration Wednesday, July 9.

Hundreds of people are expected and the three day stay in Ada is expected to be an affair that will be long remembered.

Other matters taken up at the meeting were: The College and Alumni association is to arrange for a meeting place for all East Central people in the Hucksins at the annual state teachers meeting. When at the city next look out for the meeting place of all the East Central people.

Means to put the East Central district 100 per cent in the O. E. A. were made.

The committee went on record as favoring the holiday of a May festival arranging for all the high school in the district to be represented.

At the meeting executive committee of the Alumni association a committee was appointed to confer with Mr. M. Z. Thompson to make arrangements for all letter men of East Central to receive an annual pass to the games. Also to make some plans for all letter men who have not received a reward from East Central may do so.

LONE RUN IN NINTH ADDS ANOTHER THRILLING WIN FOR ADA AMATEUR RATING

In a made-to-order base ball game here Sunday afternoon between players from the University of Oklahoma and the Ada Independents the local tribe brought the conflict to a thrilling finish in the ninth inning by rushing a lone run across the plate after they had tied the score in the preceding inning.

In a game that was featured with thrills throughout, fans were presented with a real baseball conflict. The game was never out of reach of either team from the time the umpire bellowed out the batteries until John Fain pounded out a three sacker against the left field wall and later score when Lindsey at third allowed a peg to pass out into outfield.

Ada, twirler for the collegians and Formby for Ada settled down to a pitchers duel in the opening innings of the game and refused to let down enough hits for a rally at any stage of the game. The opposing twirlers allowed six hits each.

The University team obtained their only run in the fourth inning and Ada was forced scoreless until the last half of the eighth when a couple of errors and a hit by Page allowed the run that tied up the game.

First Inning.
O. U.—Arche lined out to pitcher. Lindsey singled through second but was out stealing second. Joseph was out, third to first. One hit, no runs, no errors.

Ada—R. Waner and Young struck out. L. Waner flied out to right. No hits, no runs, no errors.

Second Inning.

WIDELY DISCUSSED BOOK "THIS FREEDOM" IS HERE

Manager Cobb of the American theater has announced that one of the finest photoplays of the year, "This Freedom," the William Fox screen version of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel of the same name, will be shown for the first time in this city today.

This book is the most discussed novel of the year and the subject is one that is of vital interest to every man and woman. "Can a woman successfully have a career and run her home so that she keeps the love of her children?" is the question Hutchinson asks, and then answers in the negative in his story. Fay Compton, has the leading role of the woman banker.

BRITISH EMIGRANTS ASSURED OF HOMES AND EMPLOYMENT

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, June 27.—It is reported that the cabinet has approved an extended scheme of migration from the British Isles to Australia.

For some time Senator Wilson, representing the Australian Commonwealth government, has been in consultation with the Overseas Settlement committee on details of the scheme, which includes provision for a loan to Australia of about $100,000,000 to assist the federal governments in the carrying out of development of work as a preliminary to the acceptance of immigrants. The new scheme is based on plans for entire families to go out and settle in Australia, and arrangements will be made in advance to insure that an immediate home and employment be available.

HEALTH WARNING GIVEN BY PUCKETT

Keeping Well in Summer is Matter of Common Sense, Health Man Says

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 7.—Keeping well in summer with adults is a matter of using common sense in aiding the body to carry on its normal functions in a normal way, according to Dr. Carl Puckett, state health commissioner, who, in a bulletin issued this week, outlines a summer health code.

"Hot weather is, of course, a particularly trying time for infants," the commissioner said. "Breast fed babies have little trouble if the quality of the milk is good but if cows milk has to be used it should be properly pasteurized."

Following are the health articles included in the department bulletin:

"When the weather is hot the surface blood vessels are expanded and the sweat glands bathe the body with perspiration. By its evaporation the skin is cooled. Drafts are harmless in summer unless the cooling of the body is too rapid. A fan is as useful to the human machine as it is to an automobile. "A daily bath keeps the pores open. Light clothing aids in rapid evaporation of the perspiration. Exercise is essential but over-exertion in the hot sun should be avoided.

"The matter of diet is one of great importance. Fats, sugar and starches are heat producing. Nature gave us fruits and green vegetables in abundance during the summer season. Over eating overloads the system. Eat moderately of a varied diet. Ice cream, sodas and sundaes may satisfy the palate and temporarily cool the throat but they are heat producing nevertheless.

"Food spoils more quickly in hot weather on account of the rapid growth of the organisms of decay. Be careful when away from home that food served is not tainted and that fruit is not over-ripe.

"Plenty of cold water is essential. A large amount is needed in hot weather on account of the activity of the sweat glands. Plenty of sleep or at least plenty of rest, even if it is too hot to sleep, will aid in keeping one strong and well."

THREE GERMAN EXECUTIONERS SUICIDES IN AS MANY MONTHS

(By the Associated Press)

ERKNER, Prussia.—Executioner Krautz, who recently killed himself in this village, is the third executioner to meet death by suicide in Germany within three months.

Krautz had cut off the heads of 125 prisoners, while Schwietz and Spaethe, the two Breslau executioners who ended their own lives, had carried out only 123 and 48 executions respectively.

In his last years Krautz wandered about the villages of Prussia, telling stories of the 125 persons he had put to death, and suffered many delusions. He slept with his executioner's axe at his head, and said he was unable to rest without it.

Krautz regarded guillotining as an art and was always trying to perfect himself in its practice. Both he and Schwietz regarded Jules Delbier, the Parisian executioner, as the great master of their craft and exchanged letters with him.

Philadelphia, Pa., has more individual home owners than any other two American cities, including New York and Chicago.

Judith of Blue Lake Ranch

By Jackson Gregory

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

Synopsis

CHAPTER I.—Bud Lee, horse foreman of the Blue Lake ranch, convinced Bayne Trevors, manager, is deliberately wrecking the property owned by Judith Sanford, a young woman, her cousin, Pollock Hampton, and Timothy Gray, decides to throw up his job. Judith arrives and announces she has bought Gray's share in the ranch and will run it. She discharges Trevors.

She stared at Lee as though she could not believe it. He merely stared back at her, wondering just how much she knew about herself.

"Then, suddenly, she whirled again upon Trevors."

"I came out to see if you were a crook or just a fool," she told him, her words like a slap in his face. "No man could be so big a fool as that! You—you crook!"

The muscles under Bayne Trevors' jaws corded. "You've said about enough," he shot back at her. "And even if you do own a third of this outfit, I'll have you understand that I am the manager here and that I do what I like."

From her bosom she snatched a big envelope, tossing it to the table. "Look at that," she ordered him. "You big thief! I've mortgaged my holding for fifty thousand dollars and I've bought in Timothy Gray's share. I save two votes out of three now, Bayne Trevors. And the great big grafting fat-head! You would chuck Luke Sanford's outfit to the dogs, would you? Get off the ranch. You're fired!"

"You can't do a thing like this!" snapped Trevors, after one swift glance at the papers he had whisked out of their covering.

"I can't, can't I?" she jeered at him. "Don't you fool yourself for one little minute! Pack your little trunk and hammer the trail!"

"I'll do nothing of the kind. Why, I don't know even who you are! You say that you are Judith Sanford." He shrugged his massive shoulders. "How do I know what game you are up to?"

"You can't bluff me for two seconds, Bayne Trevors," she blazed at him. "You know who I am, all right. Send for Sunny Harper," she ended sharply.

"Discharged three months ago," Trevors told her with a show of teeth. "Johnny Hodge, then," she commanded. "Or Tod Bruce or Bing Kelley. They all know me."

"Fired long ago, all of them," laughed Trevors, "to make room for competent men."

"To make room for more crooks!" she cried, her own brown hands balled into fists scarcely less hard than Trevors' had been. Then for the third time she turned upon Lee. "You are one of his new thieves, I suppose?" "Thank you, ma'am," said Bud Lee gravely.

"Well, answer me. Are you?" "No, ma'am," he told her, with no hint of a twinkle in his calm eyes. "Leastwise, not his exactly. You see, I do all my killing and highway robbing on my own books. It's just a way I have."

"Well," Judith sniffed, "I don't know. It will be a jolt to me if there's a square man left on the ranch! Go down to the bunk-house and tell the cook I'm here and I'm hungry as a wildcat. Tell him and any of the boys that are down there that I've come to stay and that Trevors is fired. They take orders from me and no one else. And hurry. If you know how. Goodness knows, you look as though it would take you half an hour to turn around!"

"Thank you, ma'am," said Bud Lee. "But you see I had just told Trevors here he could count me out. I'm not working for the Blue Lake any more. As I go down to the corral, shall I send up one of the boys to take your orders?"

There was a little smile under the last words, just as there was a little smile in Bud Lee's heart at the thought of the boys taking orders from a little slip of a girl. Inside he was chuckling, vastly delighted with the comedy of the morning.

"She's a sure-enough little wonder-bird, all right," he mused. "But, say, what does she want to butt in on a man's-size job, for I want to know?"

"Lee," called Trevors, "you take orders from me or no one on this ranch. You can go now. And just keep your mouth shut."

Bud Lee was turning to go out and down to his horse when he saw the look in Trevors' eyes, a look of consuming rage. The general manager's voice had been hoarse.

"D—n you," shouted Trevors, "get out!" "Cut out the swear-words, Trevors," said Lee with quiet sternness. "There's a lady here."

"Lady!" scoffed Trevors. He laughed contemptuously. "Where's your lady? That?" and he leveled a scornful finger at the girl. "A ranting tough of a female who brings a breath of the stables with her and scolds like a fish-wife. . . ."

"Shut up!" said Lee, crossing the room with quick strides, his face thrust forward a little.

"You shut up!" It was Judith's voice as Judith's hand fell upon Bud Lee's shoulder, pushing him aside. "If I couldn't take care of myself do you think I'd be fool enough to take over a little job like running the Blue Lake? Now—" and with blazing eyes she confronted Trevors—"if you've got any more nice little things to say, suppose you say them to me!"

Trevors' temper had had ample provocation and now stood naked and hot in his hand eyes. In a blind instant he laid his tongue to a word which would have sent Bud Lee at his throat. But Judith stood between them and, like an echo to the word, came the resounding slap as Judith's open palm smote Trevors' cheek.

"You wildcat!" he cried. And his two big hands flew out, seeking her shoulders.

"Stand back!" called Judith. "Just because you are bigger than I am, don't make any mistake! Stand back I tell you!"

Bud Lee marveled at the swiftness with which her hand had gone into her blouse and out again, a small-caliber revolver in the steady fingers now. He had never known a man—himself possibly excepted—quicker at the draw.

But Bayne Trevors, from whose make-up cowardice had been omitted, laughed sneeringly at her and did not stand back. His two hands out before him, his face crimson, he came on.

"Fool!" cried the girl. "Fool!" Still he came on. Lee gathered himself to spring.

Judith fired. Once, and Trevors' right arm fell to his side. A second time, and Trevors' left arm hung limp like the other. The crimson was gone from his face now. It was dead white. Little beads of sweat began to form on his brow.

Lee turned astonished eyes to Judith.

"Now you know who's running this outfit, don't you?" she said coolly. "Lee, have a team hitched up to carry Trevors wherever he wants to go. He's not hurt much; I just winged him. And go tell the cook about my breakfast."

But Lee stood and looked at her. He had no remark to offer. Then he turned to go upon her bidding. As he went down to the bunk-house he said softly under his breath: "Well, I'm d—d. I most certainly am!"

CHAPTER II

Judith Puts It Straight

Wrinkled, grizzled old half-breed Jose, his hands trembling with eagerness, stood in the smaller rose-garden culling the perfect buds, a joyous tear running its zigzag way down each cheek.

"La senorita ees come home!" he announced as Lee drew near on his way to the bunk-house. "Jesu Maria! Een my heart it is like the singing of little birds. Mire, senor. My flowers bloomin' the brighter, already—no?"

"You've known her a long time, Joe?"

"Seence she ees born!" and Jose, unashamed, wiped a tear upon the back of a leathery hand. "Senor Sanford and me, senor, we teach her when she ees so little!" Jose's shaking hand was lowered until it marked the stature of a twelve-inch pigmy. "Never college. Upon his graduation, Ingwerson was immediately signed as an assistant football coach under his old teacher, Robert Zuppke. He at all until one year ago does she leave us and the rancho. We, us two who love her, senor, learn her to walk and to ride and to shoot and to talk. You shall hear her say, 'Buenos dias Jose, mi amigo.' You shall see her keep the cheek of old Jose. Madre de Dios! I would go down to hell for her to bring back fire to warm her little feet een weenter!"

Lee went thoughtfully on his way to the bunk-house. "I've got orders for you fellows," he said from the doorway. "The boss of the outfit, the real owner, you know, just blew in. Up at the house. Says you boys are to stick around to take orders straight from headquarters. You, Benny," to the cook, "are to have a man's size breakfast ready in a jiffy."

Naturally Benny led the clamor with a string of oaths. What in blazes did the owner of the ranch have to show up for anyway?—he wanted to know. He accepted the fact as a personal affront. Who was this owner?—demanded Ward Hannon, the foreman of the lower ranch, where the alfalfa fields were.

Lee explained gravely that the newcomer was some sort of relative of old Luke Sanford, who had recently acquired a controlling interest in the ranch. Ward Hannon granted contemptuously. "The Lord deliver us!" he moaned. "Eastern jasper! One of the know-all-about-it brand, huh, Bud? I'll bet he combs his hair in the middle and smokes cigars out'n a box! The putty-headed loons can't even roll their own smokes."

"Don't believe," hazarded Lee indifferently, "from the looks of our visitor that—that the owner smokes anything!"

"Listen to that!" grunted Ward Hannon. "Softly, huh?"

"Well," Bud admitted slowly, "looks sort of like a girl, you know?"

"Wouldn't that choke you?" demanded Carson, the cow foreman, a thin, awkward little man, gray in the service of "real men." "Taking orders off'n a fool easterner's bad enough. But old man or young, Bud?"

"Just a kid," was Lee's further dampening news. And as he nonchalantly buttered his hot cakes he added carelessly: "Something of a scrapper, though. Just put two thirty-two calibers into Trevors."

They stared at him incredulously. Then Carson's dry cackle led the laughter.

"You're the biggest liar, Bud Lee," said the old man good-naturedly, "I ever focused my two eyes on. I'll lay an even bet there ain't nobody showed a-tall up this morning."

"You, Tommy," said Lee to the boy at his side, "shovel your grub down lively and go hitch Molly and old Pie-face to the buckboard. That's orders from headquarters," he grinned. "Trevors is to be hauled away first thing."

Tommy looked curiously at his superior. "On the level, Bud?" he asked doubtfully.

"On the level, laddie," was the quiet response.

And young Burkitt, wondering, but doubting no longer, hastened with his breakfast.

The others, looking at Lee's sober face questioning, fired a broadside of inquiries at him. But they got no further information.

"I've told you boys all the news," he announced positively. "Lord! Isn't that an awful for this time of day? The real boss is on the job: Trevors is winged; you are to stick around for orders from headquarters."

Out of the tail of his eye he saw the swift approach of Bayne Trevors. The general manager's face was black with rage and through that dark wrath showed a dull red flush of shame. He walked with his two arms lax at his sides.

"Give me a cup of coffee, Ben," he commanded curtly, slumping into a chair. "Hurry!"

Benny, looking at him curiously, brought a steaming cup and offered it. Trevors moved to lift a hand; then sank back a little farther in his chair, his face twisting in his pain.

"Put some milk in it," he snarled. "Then hold it to my mouth. For the love of heaven, hurry, man!"

Then no man there doubted longer the mad tale Bud Lee had brought them. Down from Trevors' sleeves, staining each hand, there had come a broadening trickle of blood. Trevors drank swiftly, draining the cup.

"Get this coat off me," he commanded.

It was 24 years of age, the youngest coach of any major college eleven in the United States. He will work on a 12 months' basis here.

Victoria White Gets Title Of 'Candy Kid' From 'Poppy' Cast

"HAPPY" was a Welshman," says the old song, but it does not take a Welshman—or a Welshwoman either, to make good taffy, as witness the accomplishments of Victoria White, charming musical-comedy star, whose Clear Almond Taffy has earned her the title of the "Candy Kid" among the other members of the cast of "Poppy" in which she is singing the name part.

After tasting the taffy, we are emphatically of the same opinion. Try it and see.

4 cupsful Sugar
1/2 cupful Crisco
A pinch of Cream of Tartar
1/2 teaspoonful of Salt

1 cupful Water
2 cupsful Almonds
1/2 teaspoonful Almond Extract

Blanche, split, and bake almonds to golden brown. Grease a tin, and sprinkle almonds on it split side down. Dissolve sugar and water together in saucepan, add Crisco, salt, and cream of tartar, and boil until when tested in cold water it will be brittle, or 300° F. Add almond extract and pour over nuts. When firm, cut in squares.

manded. "Curse you, don't tear my arms off! Slit the sleeves."

It was Lee who, pushing the clumsy cook aside, silently made the two bandages from strips of Trevors' shirt. It was Lee who brought a flask of brandy from which Trevors drank deep.

And then came Judith.

They stared at her as they might have done had the heavens opened and an angel come down, or the earth split and a devil sprung up. She looked in upon them with quick, keen eyes which sought to take every man's measure. They returned her regard with a variety of amazed expressions. Never since these men had come to work for Bayne Trevors had a woman so much as ridden by the door. And to have her stand there, composed, utterly at her ease, her air vaguely authoritative, a vitally vivid being who might, suddenly, have taken tangible form from the dawn, bewildered them.

"I am Judith Sanford," she said in her abrupt fashion, quite as she had made the announcement to Lee and Trevors. "This outfit belongs to me. I have fired Trevors. You take your orders straight from me from now on. Cookie, give me some coffee."

She came in without ceremony and sat down at the head of the table. Benny hastily brought the coffee. From some emotion certainly not clear to him he went a violent red. Perhaps the emotion was just sheer embarrassment. He brought hot cakes with one hand while with the other he buttoned his gaping shirt-collar over a bulging, hairy chest.

Men who had finished their breakfasts rose hastily with a marked awkwardness and ill-concealed haste and went outside, whence their low voices came back in a confused consultation. Men who had not finished followed them. In an amazingly short time there were but the girl, Lee, Trevors and the cook in the room. Bud Lee, moving with his usual leisureliness, was following when Judith's cool voice said quietly:

"You, Lee, wait a moment. I want to talk with you."

Lee hesitated. Then he came back and waited.

The men outside naturally grouped about the general manager. His angry voice, lifted clearly, reached the two in the room.

LUSITANIA SAFE AT BED OF OCEAN, EXPERTS SAY

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON.—Chances are that the Lusitania, sunk off the Irish coast by a German torpedo in May, 1915, never will be raised, according to David Masters, author of a book which describes the wonders of salvage.

The sheer weight of the sea, the writer points out, quickly obliterates man's handiwork, and the Lusitania probably ceased to be a ship years ago. It is extremely likely that the tremendous pressure to which she was subjected at the depth of 288 feet long ago crushed her flat, he says.

The liner's 30-ton safe, full of valuables, would be strong enough, one might think, to resist the pressure of the sea; but even the chances of saving the safe alone from the liners' strong room do not appeal to the writer as being worth the risk.

Score of schemes have been propounded for salvaging the Lusitania. An American has proposed to use a submarine which would fire torpedoes through the hull. Each torpedo would carry a steel cable. When sufficient cables had been fired they would be picked up on the other side, brought to the surface, and the wreck lifted from the depths. Experts say this ingenious scheme is simple in theory, but impracticable, and that the Lusitania remains and is likely to remain where she sunk more than nine years ago.

troublers because of the last three syllables.

The fight between classes is the pervading sentiment in the examples of these improvised text books that have come to the notice of the authorities. How to deal with the situation is a hard problem. The present government is inclined to the proudest leniency in such matters, and the school teachers' influence in rural districts is such that there are no means of combating him on his own ground.

The Communists took 800,000 votes from the Socialists in the recent elections, and the coalition of the latter with the Radicals is expected to drive a great many more toward Bolshevism before another election is held. In this the school teachers' influence is not felt, but it is thought that the present generation of country school children will, if there is not a reaction in the meantime, swell the communists ranks immensely when it becomes of voting age.

Rancher Sees White Deer
BONNERS PERRY, Idaho, Aug. 26.—White deer, a buck and doe, have been seen near here recently, according to reports from several sources. George LaFontaine, a rancher, said the doe was entirely white while the buck had two brown spots, each about 6 inches in diameter, on his back.

Impregnable bank vaults are now built by the use of alloy and special steels impervious to attack by the oxyacetylene torch.

BLACK HILLS HOPE SOON TO PRODUCE HELIUM GAS

(By the Associated Press)
DEADWOOD, S. D., Aug. 25.—Foothills of the Black Hills of South Dakota are offering the latest hope that a supply of helium gas is available near here for use of the war and navy departments in furthering experiments with lighter-than-air craft. This discovery was made by Dr. Dorsey Lyons, assistant director of the federal bureau of mines, while investigating the possibility of treating "blue ores" cheaply enough so that their valuable metals may be extracted at a profit.

Hasty analysis of gas taken from wells driven near St. Onge and Belle Fourche, S. D., showed it odorless, impossible to ignite and of a lower specific gravity than ordinary illuminating gas, Dr. Lyons said. Laboratory tests are to be made to determine definitely whether the gas is helium, and whether it exists in sufficient quantity to make development feasible.

TO STUDY INDIAN PART IN CULTURE

Development of Southwest From Culture of Indians To Be Probed

(By the Associated Press)

SANTA FE, N. M., Aug. 25.—Cultural development of Southwestern United States, the peculiar influence of ancient Indian civilizations on that culture and the relation of the modern library to it, are to be explored at the second biennial conference of the Southwestern Library association here August 28-30. The conference will have an international aspect through the presence of Mexican library officials and by the fact that Mexico is a member of the association. Other member states are: New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

The Mexican department of Education, division of libraries will be represented either by Jaime Fones Bodet or Rafael Heliadora Valle, association officials have been informed.

One of the greatest problems of the Southwest, that of illiteracy especially among its foreign groups confronts the librarian, according to Miss Elizabeth H. West, Texas state librarian, president of the association. It is an even greater problem here, she said, than in the Eastern states, because of the great stretches of sparsely settled country and the slower development of schools and wealth.

The afternoon of the first day is to be turned over to the state symposium on fighting illiteracy, especially with reference to the library's responsibility to the illiterate.

Awakening of the people of the Southwest to a realization of their own peculiar culture, their art, their literature, especially their archeology and folk lore is to be stressed. There are to be addresses on the Southwest a thousand years ago by Dr. Edgar L. Hewett of Santa Fe, one of the greatest of southwestern archeologists; the New Mexico tradition in southwestern literature by Mrs. Alice Corbin Henderson, author of "Red Earth"; and on some

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

VALUE OF SAFETY ZONES

Many cities have safety zones—raised areas—in the center of the streets. The only objection to these islands is that they force traffic "through the neck of the bottle" which slows it. If necessary to slow up traffic to protect pedestrians, traffic should be slowed up.

When installing zones of safety it must be determined how much of the roadway width can be spared. Their length should usually be not less than 15 or more than 20 feet. The best form is that of a parallelogram with elliptical ends. In Paris the ends are round, in London elliptical.

Zones of safety are much used abroad to fill spaces left irregular by the intersections of streets, where they are of great value to pedestrians and for the traffic regulation.

WATER MELON MARKET IN RUSH SPRINGS, OKLAHOMA

(By the Associated Press)

RUSH SPRINGS, Okla., Aug. 25.—Although the spring weather was out the best for watermelons, several car loads will be marketed from this place, the center of the watermelon growing belt in Oklahoma. Despite the heavy rains of spring, the warm weather of early summer brought out the tardy-developing watermelon, growers here say.

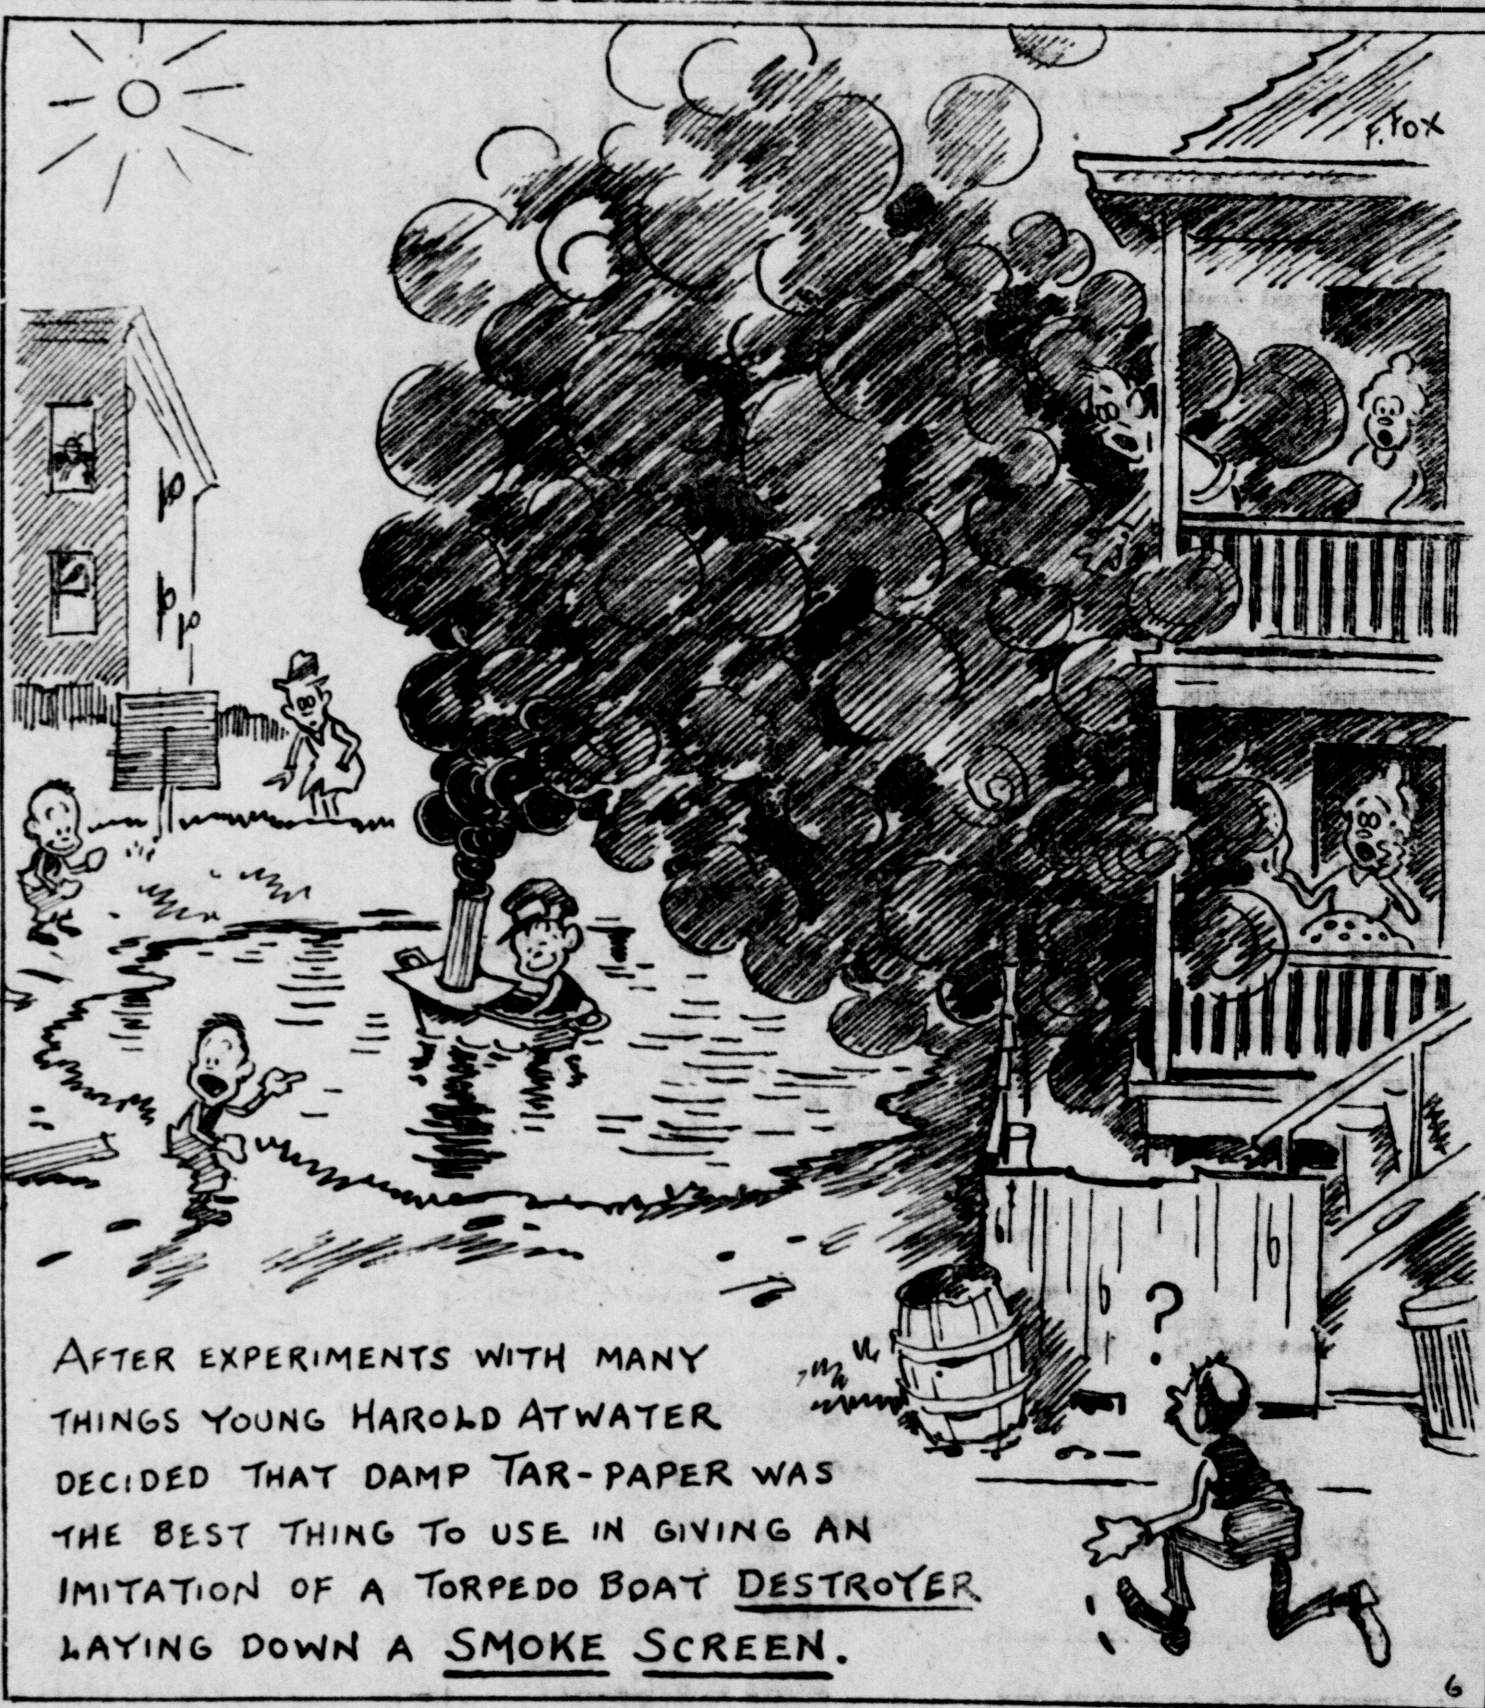

The commission houses are paying from 40 to 50 cents the 100 pounds for melons averaging 25 pounds in size, and as most of the melons grown here are of large size, it is expected top price will be paid.

Most of the watermelons grown near here are of the "Tom Watson" variety, but there are a few "Perfectionists," cultivated, growers say.

Painted Their Way to Bright Future Ahead

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

ALAN DEANE felt in harmony with the world as he left the little vine-embowered cottage where the treasure of his heart was bestowed—Edna Wilton.

Alan was something of an artist. For a few months he assisted a scenic artist in getting up the scenes for a grand spectacular drama.

This led to his introduction to a successful manufacturer, who was making a specialty of his celebrated "Red Rose Soap." The man had got the idea of advertising the same on all the cliff sides he could find in Idaho. The more inaccessible the place, the more daring the feat of thus giving his soap publicity, the more liberally was he willing to pay.

With all arranged and a surety of good money ahead, Alan went to Edna and proposed. He had hesitated before because there was a rival in the field. There was one Burt Ridgeway. Edna had entirely disabused Alan's mind of the fear that she ever dreamed of Ridgeway as a possible suitor.

So he was very happy as he left the Wilton home in the early twilight. Suddenly, at a lonely spot, he heard a suspicious rustle, then quick footsteps. Alan turned just as some one fairly leaped upon him.

"Ridgeway, I've found you at last!" was hissed in his ear.

Alan was strong, his assailant no match for him. He twisted free of his feeble clutch, gave the man a push, and the latter fell to the ground.

"Oh, I've made a mistake," he said, quickly, regarding Alan more clearly.

"It seems so," replied Alan, with curiosity and pity commingled, regarding his assailant. "You spoke the name of Ridgeway, though. Were you looking for him? and is it Burt Ridgeway you mean?"

"Yes it is. I've been watching to come across him."

"Well, Ridgeway is away from the town; has been for a week," explained Alan. "You didn't have a very friendly welcome waiting for him, it seems," he intimated. "That's not my business, though. See here, my man," added Alan, as the other arose and, in trying to keep his feet, staggered somewhat as though from sheer weakness, "you look and act as if you need help."

Alan was surprised, as the man, instead of replying in words, turned away from him and, leaning against a tree, sobbed out incoherently something about "a great wrong" somebody had done to him—"disgrace," "ruin," a long tramp, the need of food and shelter.

Through it all ran a secret, bitter strain connected vaguely with Ridgeway, but the man did not explain further. Alan, in a kindly, considerate way, made a proffer of assistance. The result was that the poor wretch was comfortably housed at the little hotel in the village that night.

When Alan started out on his unique painting trip, the stranger, who was named Jim Prevost, accompanied him.

During a month bright, cheering letters followed Alan in his wilderness course. Then, although he wrote regularly, there came no replies.

One afternoon Alan and his companion had been working since day-break on a particularly perilous undertaking. Alan had left Prevost to put on the finishing touches and had gone to the near settlement to arrange for the removal of their traps.

Returning, his heart stood still as he neared the cliff. A man was hanging at the ropes sustaining the frail platform a hundred feet down. He sawed them through; there was a crash below—a blood-curdling shriek.

"Burt Ridgeway!" exclaimed Alan, in amazement and horror, and rushed at the villain. The latter, unnerfed, as though he saw the wrath of the man he had intended to plunge to his doom, went down like a shot as Alan hit him, his head striking a rock. There he lay senseless.

Alan peered over the edge of the cliff. Clinging to a trailing cable swinging to and fro was his helper. It was the work of a moment to descend, to venture down the swaying cable till Prevost could climb over him. Alan insisted that the terrified Prevost precede him to the cliff top. When he arrived there he found Prevost bending over the insensible man, his hands full of papers.

"The coward! the murderer!" cried Prevost fiercely. "He sought to murder you, to get you out of the way, so he could win your young lady, for see, I have found some of your letters in his pocket, which he must have intercepted. Documents, too, that will aid and clear me of a crime imputed to me, which made of me a fugitive and of which he was solely guilty."

One month later, armed with a written confession from Ridgeway and the knife eliminated from their lives, Alan and Prevost completed their strange trip.

The one wedded to the beautiful girl he so loved, for the other, the man whom Alan Deane had so unselfishly defended, the dark past cleared; there was to both a bright, promising future ahead.

Plants Supply Enough Light to Take Photographs

By stimulating certain kinds of small plants with an intense beam of light, Prof. Francis E. Lloyd, of McGill university, has devised a method for taking color photographs of them by the rays which they emit. In the experiment, the plants glowed with brilliant red, orange, and yellow lights and details of their structure which could not be observed under the microscope, were revealed. The pigments, which are believed to be the source of the luminous glow, are thought to play an important part in the growth of the cells.

Camera to Detect Forgery, Snaps Face and Name

Simultaneously photographing the depositor and his signature, a double camera arrangement has been perfected by an eastern inventor for use in banks and business houses to detect forgeries. Upon a special plate the machine at one "snap" registers a picture of the person and of his handwriting, which is affixed to a blank and kept with the photograph for reference in case dispute later arises as to the depositor's identity or his signature.

Giant Saxophone Is So Large, Playing Stands on Ladder

Weighing 500 pounds and modeled accurately after smaller instruments, a huge saxophone was displayed not long ago in California. Securely bracketed to the outside of the manufacturer's shop, the giant instrument formed an impressive advertising display, and to emphasize its tremendous proportions, a young woman who attempted to play it was compelled to mount a ladder to reach the mouth-piece.

New Capitol Built over Old Saves Rent for State Offices

Replacing the old Nebraska state capitol with a $5,000,000 structure on the same site, while government work goes on unhampered in the present one, is a feat being accomplished at Lincoln. When the new building is near completion, the old one inside will be torn down. The wrecking promises to be an interesting engineering operation, as the present capitol is built entirely of stone and has a dome that rises 300 feet from the ground. Just enough room is being left between the new walls and the old building for a railroad track to carry away the debris. While six or seven years will be required to complete the project by this method, the contractor expects to save the state two or three years' rent on offices.

A Simple Camp Grate

A simple and convenient camp grate that does not take up much room and can easily be made by anyone, is shown in the drawing. It is made from a number of 18-in. lengths of 1/4-in. flat iron, about 1 in. wide. These lengths are pivoted together at the ends as shown in the upper detail, which arrangement permits them to be folded compactly or drawn out for use. The fire is made between two rows of rocks, as flat as can be found and of fairly equal height, as shown, and the grate placed on top of them. When not in use, the grate is folded up and put in a canvas pocket made to hold it.

Cranking a "Stiff" Car

After repairing a car by fitting some new bearings and taking up the old ones, it was found impossible to crank the engine, and a heavy snow prevented towing the car. However, the following scheme proved effective: Another auto was run up alongside it so that the two adjacent rear wheels of both cars were in line and could be lashed together with a rope. The axles of both cars were, of course, jacked up to keep the wheels in alignment and prevent the cars from moving. The second car was then started and both cars thrown into high gear with the result that the first one was quickly started.

Moscow's Soviet Courts Ruled By Peasants and Laborers

MOSCOW.—"Comrade" Smynoff, chairman of the Moscow district court, gives some interesting figures in his annual report concerning the personnel of the Moscow Soviet courts. Of the 287 judges, 100 are laborers and 37 are peasants. Nearly 175 are members of the Communist party, while 50 are members of the so-called intelligentsia.

Out of 7,845 men available for jury duty in Moscow, Smynoff's report says, 3,021 are drawn from the membership of the Communist party, 6,197 are workers and peasants, and 1,658 are clerical or other employees.

ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION AIDS MALARIA CONTROL

(By the Associated Press)

MANILA.—The Rockefeller Foundation has agreed to continue to supply one-half of the expenditures incurred in the campaign for the control of malaria in the Philippine Islands, undertaken jointly about two years ago by it and the Philippine health department, according to an announcement by Eugene A. Gilmore, vice-governor, under whose jurisdiction the health department operates.

Vice-Governor Gilmore said: "For more than two years the Rockefeller Foundation has supported very liberally experiments in malarial control in the Philippines. This experimental work has been conducted in the province of Laguna under the direction of J. H. Tiedeman, an expert from the foundation on the subject of malaria."

"Certain methods of malarial control have been devised which have proved very successful. The foundation has offered to continue the services of Mr. Tiedeman for the remainder of this year and to supply one-half of the expenses necessary to carrying on the work."
